

Set your schedule

The benefit of having a time-table, or schedule, to help you structure your mornings cannot be underestimated.

Having lessons that are too long is unhelpful for smaller children, and constantly having to think about what you need to do next is unhelpful for you!

A well-thought out schedule helps you to plan a morning where the right activities are done at the right time.

Thoughts on using the morning schedule:

It is a tool to serve you; you don't serve it. If you need to adjust it, to have a longer lesson or to leave out a lesson on occasion, do so!

Having a joyous and peaceful atmosphere is more important than sticking rigidly to a schedule.

Print or clearly write it out, and stick it up in the space you set aside for learning.

It is helpful to have a lovely clock that is easily visible nearby.

If you are registered with Ambleside Durban for home-education support, you are provided with an age-appropriate schedule from which to work.
